Back to the roots

Artikel info:-

This film does not exactly go back to the roots of fightplace but stands for our goal to show hard submission action without effects and fit, athletic guys. For "Back to the roots" we chose fighters matching this type of demands: Chesko and Jasper. Chesko is back after a one year break caused by an accident and a resulting operation. At a boxing practice he meets Jasper. Actually there was no fight planned because Chesko's leg is not yet completely cured. However as they hit each harder and harder they decide to switch into a wrestling match. Caused through his long pause Chesko shows a lack of fitness which Jasper relentlessly exploits. It conveys the impression that Jasper could hold a candle to Chesko. But from the middle of the fight on Chesko returns to old strength and puts Jasper through the mill. He has to endure heavy wedgies and scissors. He may be able to take revenge from time to time but Chesko is in control. The fight ends with Chesko as the expected winner. Jasper is not only completely done but also surprised how fast Chesko has returned to his old shape. But we are also sure that this fight was no bed of roses for Chesko and he rather had to give it everything to end up winning.
